

ABSTRACT

A method to collect address trace of instructions executed by a processor has been disclosed. An embodiment of the method includes receiving a software program having a set of instructions and performing instrumentation on the software program to determine addresses of the instructions of the software program in the order in which the instructions are executed by a processor.